

OCCUPATIONAL ILLNESS

Safety in the workplace is a top priority for industrial manufacturers and corporations, but claims of injury and environmental exposure do occur. When that happens, you need attorneys who understand the complexities of state and federal safety and health laws and regulations. Our team of occupational illness and workers' compensation defense attorneys have more than 30 years of experience counseling clients and defending against occupational illness claims such as:

- asbestos-related diseases
- repetitive motion injuries
- beryllium exposure
- benzene exposure
- occupational asthma, COPD, and other pulmonary disorders
- silicosis
- alleged cancers and other illnesses due to chemical exposure from diesel exhaust, benzene, creosote, and chromium
- diacetyl exposure
- pesticides and herbicides
- welding fumes and metal cutting fluids
- lead
- solvents and paints
- MOCD
- bloodborne pathogens
- foodborne pathogens

Our law firm has successfully defended numerous manufacturing, industrial, and transportation clients against these claims, and we can work with you to insure the best outcome for your company.

In addition, our Rapid Response Team can be onsite in the critical hours after an emergency to help evaluate the situation, and serve as the front line of support when appropriate response is imperative. Within 24 to 48 hours of an incident, we are on the scene, evaluating the situation and offering a legal strategy to mitigate your risk and protect your interests. We also offer crisis response and advanced planning services.